Sow's Ear Moves to Public Square, Berryville

After six happy years at our country store midway between Berryville and Eureka Springs, Dan and I have decided to relocate Sow's Ear Antiques to downtown Berryville. Beginning September 1st, we'll be at 202 Public Square, just two doors down from Gerald's Restaurant

Among the reasons for moving is our need for more convenient parking for our customers and expanded space for our growing inventories of antiques and books.

We were torn between moving to Berryville or Eureka Springs, but ultimately decided on Berryville because of the ample free parking available to customers, and because the lower cost of doing business in Berryville allows us to charge lower prices for merchandise - that we can pass along to our customers. Though we love Eureka Springs, Berryville won our hearts.

Sow's Ear Antiques is located at 202 Public Square, Berryville, just 10 miles from Eureka Springs. Open year round 9:30-5:30 Monday - Saturday. Until 7PM on Friday. Sunday by chance or appt. 870-423-7311

Along the Banks of the Wabash

Although Indiana, Ohio, and Michigan don't sound as exciting and exotic as Tibet or the Netherlands (two places I've been to on buying trips in the past few years), these durable rust belt states have been the sources of some really wonderful American antique finds during a recent trip.

With the able help of my mother and sister, two of the most capable and unstoppable pickers I know - my professional sis WILL go dumpster diving - I was able to find an almost endless list of wonders:

- Collection of Cronin Blue Tulip Pottery
- Several cake stands
- Lots are horsey-type stuff
- Wooden, working decoys
- Quilts, camp blankets and woolen blankets
- Folk art, including the cutest little child's chair
- Pewter tea service
- Wonderful vintage linens
- Fun Halloween, Thanksgiving and Christmas items

At our new location, I am also providing Caldrea Home and Personal products will the most tantalizing scents such as Basil Blue Sage Dish Soap, White Tea Laundry Detergent and Fabric Softener, Rose Pink Peppercorn room spray and body lotion, Lavender Pine Linen Spray!
